In the above picture, I have used the Command Prompt in Windows XP to navigate to where the UMSKT DOS executable file is stored. Then I typed in the above `-i` means type the installation ID `-m` means type in the type of office you are activating `office2k3` indicates you are activating Microsoft Office 2003, if you were activating Microsoft Office 2007 you would have typed in `office2k7`. Finally `-p` means you need to type in the Product ID.

Now all that has to be done is note down the confirmation ID, enter the number into the activation wizard and Office 2003 will be activated so that you can use the old software you love for printing your documents.

If you need to download UMSKT to your device, go to Archive.org where a search will take you to UMSKT which is in the form of a downloadable zip file.

When you have transferred the zip file from your phone or modern pc with access to the internet, the file can be transferred either through a direct OWL files link on the phone or USB memory stick.
